REALTY SECTION

$3,000 IS DAILY GLENDALE HEIGHTS LOT SALES

Wonder Tract Is Making History in Absorption
Under Shrewd Buying

Sales at the rate of over $3000.00 a day for every day this month, thus far, including Sundays! This is the record for Glendale Heights, "the Wonder Tract." Adams street, hard surfaced and finished complete to the top of the hill. A small army of men frantically hurrying in water and gas pipes to take care of the tremendous building boom that is now characterizing the tract. 1260 trees being set out on the beautiful winding driveways that will over the tract. Tropical grove surrounding the property and commanding a view of Los Angeles, Eagle Rock, Montrose, the entire San Fernando Valley and all the surrounding sections now just being placed on the market. A new slogan, "Glendale's new residential direction is southeast, closest to Los Angeles." With Adams street upon the Verdugo road, Glendale Heights will be only four miles distant from the Los Angeles post office.

THE NATION IS BUSILY BUILDING ITS HOMES

The pound of the carpenter's hammer heard throughout Glendale is an echo of the greatest building boom that ever spread universally over the whole of the United States.

From Boston to Los Angeles, from Detroit to New Orleans, the building trades are driving as they never drove before. The cry is everywhere—"More homes!"

A survey given on October 25, by Edward C. Derr of the Chicago office of the United Press, shows the sweep of construction throughout the country. It follows:

The greatest building boom in the history of the United States is now in progress, according to figures obtained today by the United Press.

The rush to build is limited to no one city, state or section. Throughout the country carpenter's hammers are sounding, the figures show.

"A new city—larger by far than any in the world—would spring up almost overnight if all the buildings contracted for during 1922 were concentrated in one place," declared E. J. Brunner, editor of the American Contractor.

Building records are being broken in practically all the large cities. Contractors report a shortage of skilled construction workers to meet the unprecedented demand," Brunner said.

Residential buildings, factories and business buildings lead the list. Schools are being built in greater numbers and at greater expense than at any time in recent years.

The total valuation of buildings for which contracts were let in twenty large cities during the first nine months of 1922 is $1,218,210,943, compared with $1,065,699,040 for the entire twelve months of 1921. The cities included in these figures are:

New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Boston, Detroit, Kansas City, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Cleveland, Los Angeles, Indianapolis, Seattle, New Orleans, Dallas, Buffalo, Minneapolis, Milwaukee and Atlanta.

The total of permits to build issued in greater New York for the period of January 1 and October 1, 1922, shows an increase of $95,231,799 over the same period last year.

Boston spent four times more money for building this year than last.

More than 11,200 building permits were issued in Philadelphia between January 1 and October 1 of this year as compared with 9,773 last year.

Figures for Dallas show more than 5,000 homes built since January 1, 1922.

Building contracts in Missouri during the month of September show an increase of 18 per cent over September, 1921.

San Francisco has spent more than twice as much for building during 1922 than for the same period in 1921.

Memphis, Tenn., figures show a doubled valuation of buildings.

A large number of costly schools has thrown Atlanta's buildings bill to tremendous figures.

Wheeling, W. Va., has built more houses this year than appeared during the entire span of the last ten years.

The state of Minnesota has increased its building program by 22 per cent.

Denver has nearly doubled its figures for last year.

Detroit has had an unprecedented increase.

Portland, Ore., has broken all building records since 1910.

Construction of 1,360 residential buildings was the feature of the building program in Birmingham, Ala.

NEW HOMES SHOW ON MANY TRACTS ABOUT CITY

Like Tents of Mustering
Army, They Tell of Golden Subdivisions

Like tents of a mustering army, gleaming new homes dotting the golden subdivisions of Glendale, graphically telling the tale of the future of the city, point to the way it must go in the years ahead and carry a message to the sagacious and the far thinking newcomers within the city who is seeking to read the riddle of the future in the present.

To the north and west, Fairview with its almost miraculous growth of a few months from stubble field to new homes and home gardens, bids invitingly.

Closer to Glendale's heart, Kenneth Heights, with its more mature homes are clustering nearer together tying tighter to Glendale's settled community.

Southward, Los Feliz Boulevard Grove and Angelus Park bids fair to grow into a community of pleasant neighbors to Glendale and to Los Angeles.

Nearby is Ivanhoe, the wonder tract, with a record of absorption per day.

Across the south end of the city, the Glendale Heights tract, a subdivision of surpassing loveliness, being absorbed at the rate of $3,000 daily investment, invites with its sterling worth and carefully planned streets, now, at the end of six months, almost covered with new homes.

Further west is the growing Sagamore park subdivision, tying Eagle Rock, Glendale and Los Angeles into a firm handshake.

Going north and westward is Maple Court within the city, small but carefully selected.

Away up north, in the foothills, lies the great outdoor foothill lover's paradise, the huge acreage of the Verdugo Woodlands, now about a year in growth, towards a settled community, on 1,000 acres.

Beyond covering the hills, the dales, the sweep of the mountains, is the newest colossal effort to bring out the wonders of the scenery, the 1500-acre Sparr Heights $3,000,000 development, where homesites may be had now with any natural element that might be desired.

Thousands upon thousands of dollars are pouring into these subdivisions of Glendale, some for immediate settlement, some for speculation; all with the center idea of ground floor values of seeing opportunity first.

Anywhere within these tracts, these subdivisions of Glendale, not a dollar can be lost in investment. To the investor, the home builder, these are Glendale's opportunities of today. As tracts close their offerings, under the relentless absorption, and new ones open up in far flung boundaries, these will become the lots of lost opportunities to those who fail to absorb their portions of the offerings today.

Be sure to get your lot somewhere in this subdivision. And do it today while the first prices are low. Tomorrow may be too late.

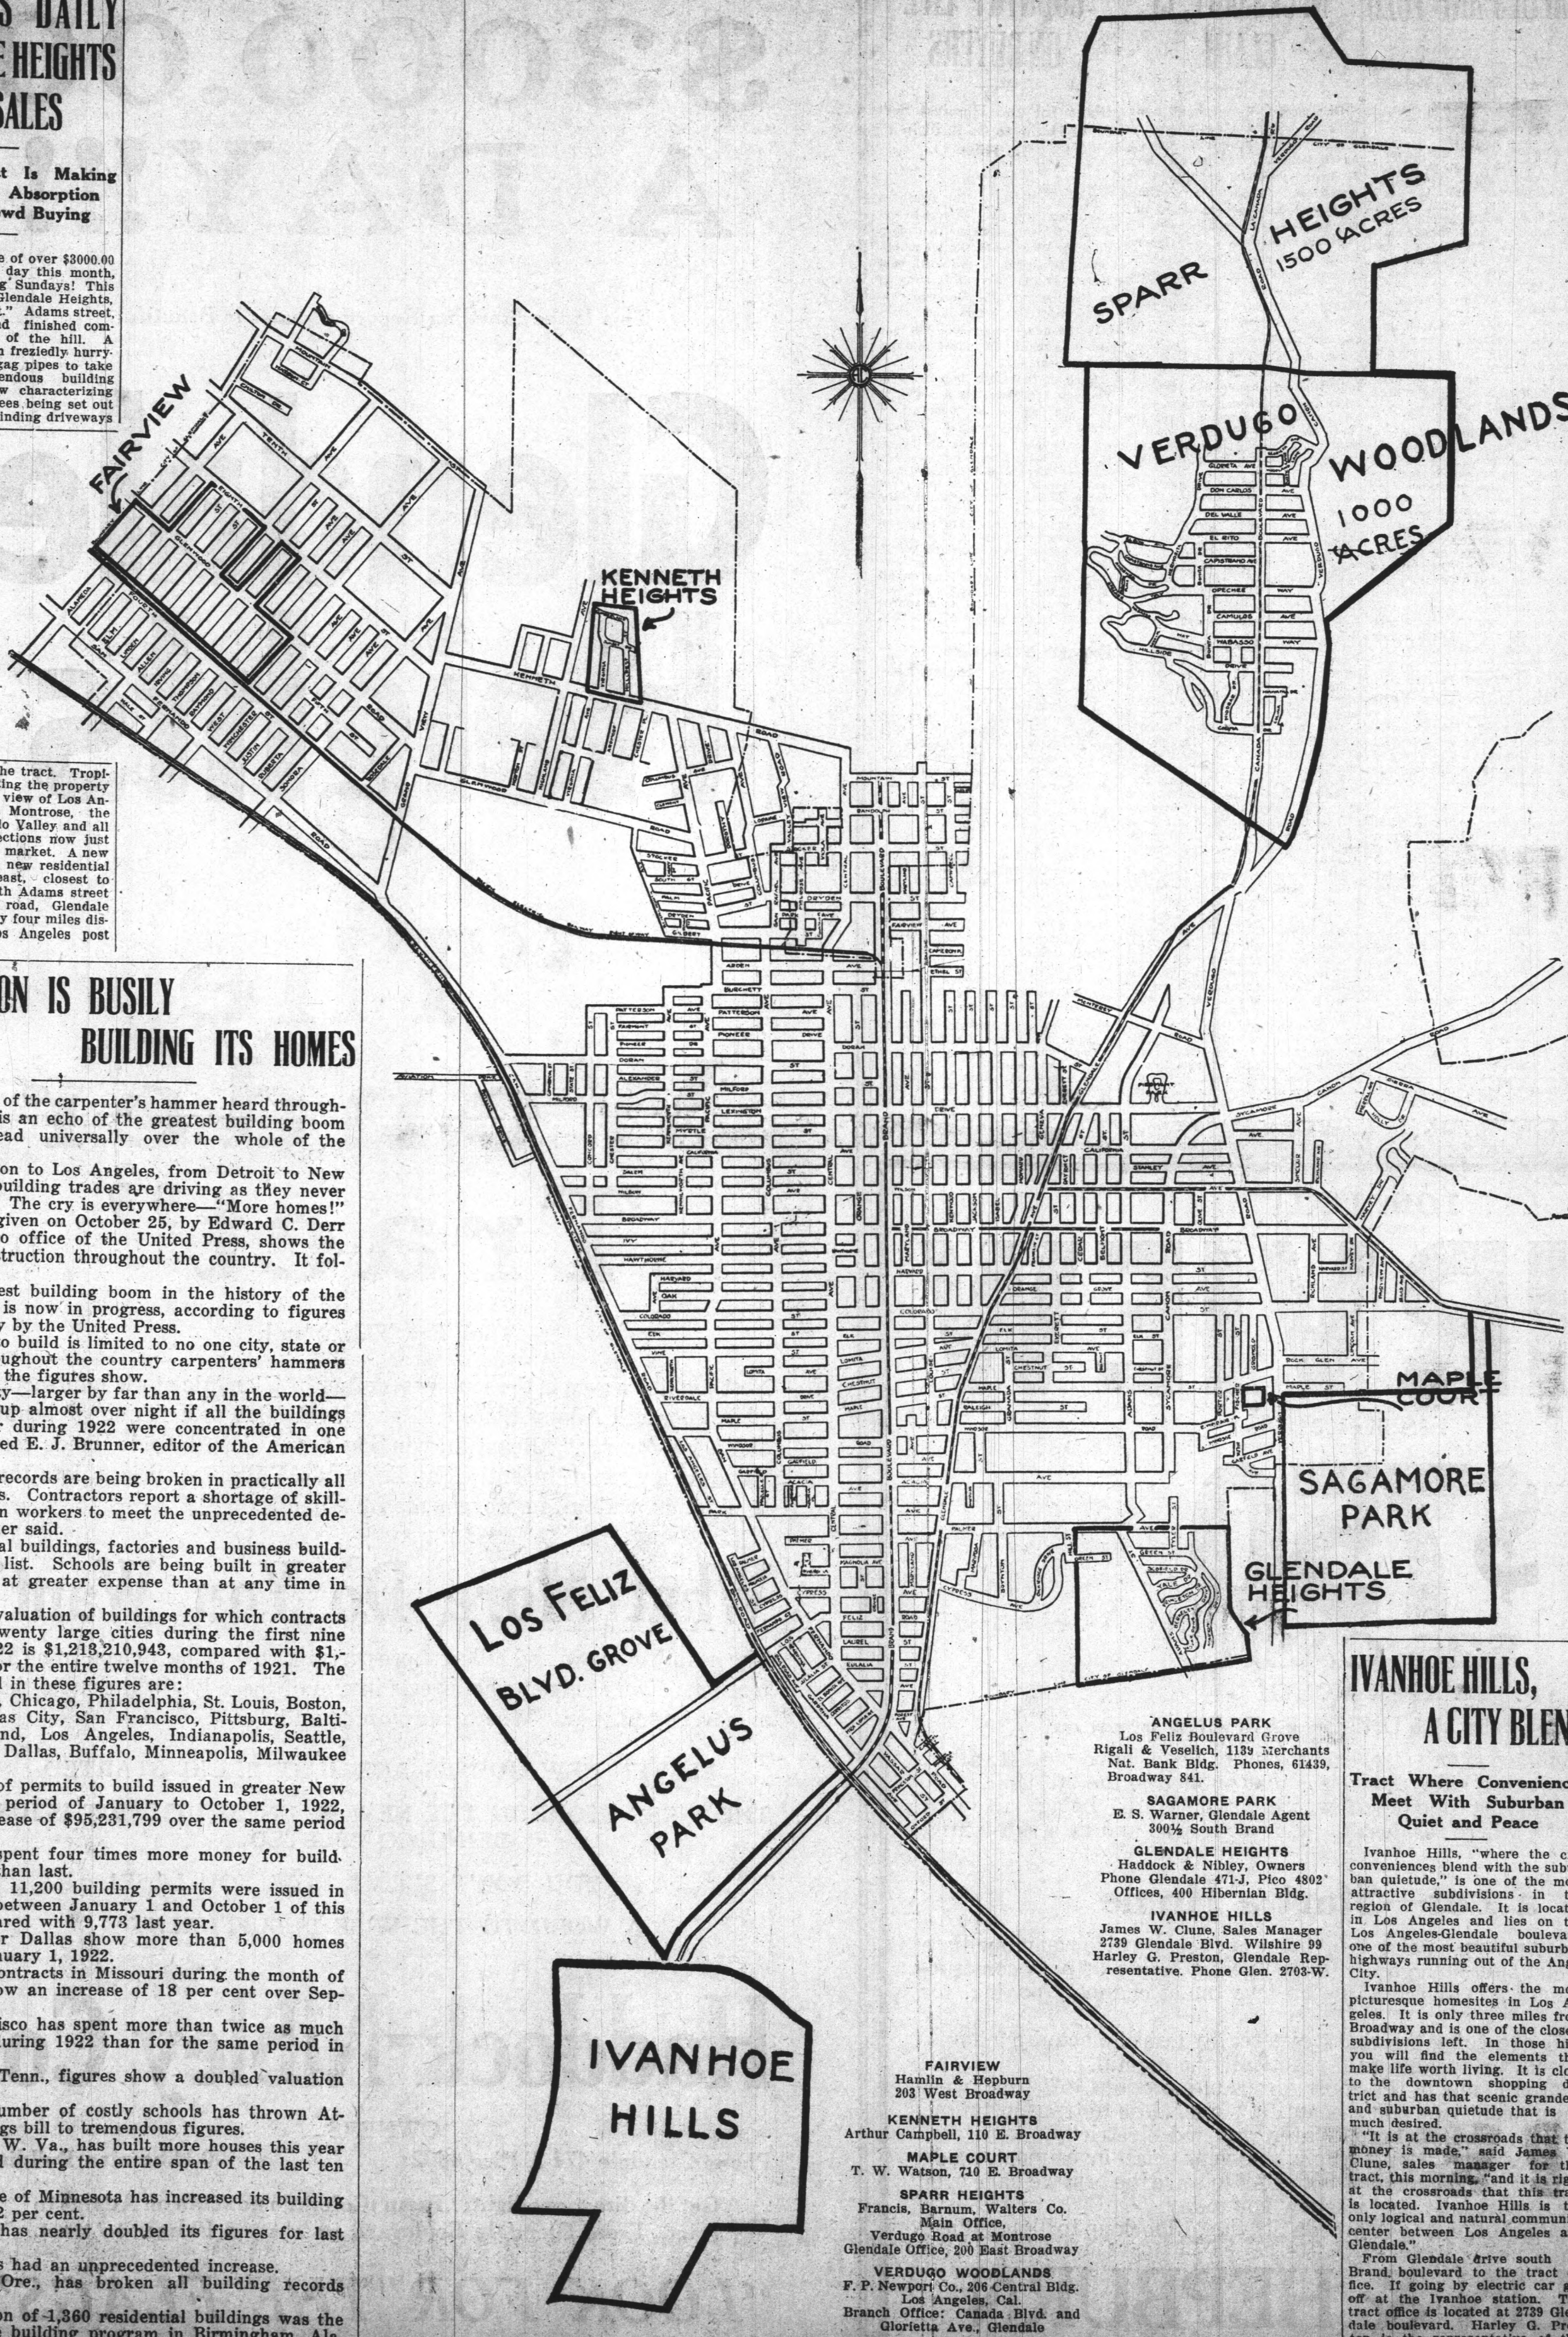

Remember where bare fields show today. Tomorrow the gleaming new roof of a home builder will go up and with the raising of that roof goes upward the price of the adjacent property.

START A HOME, URGES FAIRVIEW

"Buy a lot—start a home," say Hamlin and Hepburn, the subdividers of the various units of Fairview. They continue, "If you are not able to put up a permanent home at once, we will give you immediate possession and allow you to put up a garage or temporary house while construction, so that your rent money is diverted into an investment channel—paying for your own property. "Hundreds of people are doing this, and if you are really desirous of acquiring a home, this is the best way we know of to start with practically no capital. We will make everything as easy for you as we can for we want to see you comfortably settled in a place of your own."

Everybody in Glendale knows where the Fairview tract is located and what a wonderful home place it is. It is far from the maddening commercial life where everything is artificial. It is located on gently sloping land, where the air is fresh and the scenery is wonderful. The people living up in Fairview are not the richest in the world—but who would care to live next to those with unlimited wealth. No real red-blooded American "wants the tailor made sort of existence. What is desired is to get right down to living, with the little family garden, the lawn, the flowers, and the little home that has an atmosphere that money cannot buy."

These homey things are to be found in Fairview, and they are the things that are making this tract so popular. The tenth unit of this tract is on sale today. Nine units have been entered, disposed of. Lots 50 by 100 feet are being sold as low as $750 with a down payment of $25 and $15 per month. Could anything be more fair?

IVANHOE HILLS, A CITY BLEND

Tract Where Conveniences
Meet With Suburban
Quiet and Peace

Ivanhoe Hills, "where the city conveniences blend with the suburban quietude," is one of the most attractive subdivisions in the region of Glendale. It is located in Los Angeles and lies on the Los Angeles-Glendale boulevard, one of the most beautiful suburban highways running out of the Angel City.

Ivanhoe Hills offers the most picturesque homesites in Los Angeles. It is only three miles from Broadway and is one of the closest subdivisions left. In those hills you will find the elements that make life worth living. It is close to the downtown shopping district and has that scenic grandeur and suburban quietude that is so much desired.

"It is at the crossroads that the money is made," said James W. Clune, sales manager for this tract, this morning, "and it is right at the crossroads that this tract is located. Ivanhoe Hills is the only logical and natural community center between Los Angeles and Glendale."

From Glendale drive south on Brand boulevard to the tract office. If going by electric car get off at the Ivanhoe station. The tract office is located at 2739 Glendale boulevard. Harley G. Preston is the representative of this tract in Glendale.

SPARR HEIGHTS IS PROTECTED ACREAGE

Line Drawn Beyond Which Commercial Projects
Cannot Expand

One of the indications of a sounder judgment and surer taste in planning subdivisions is evidenced in the fact that in many cases a segregated business section is set aside beyond the limits of which commercialism is allowed. This serves to protect the builders of fine homes from any aesthetic depreciation of their property and prevents the "spotty" straggling appearance and lack of uniformity in most shopping centers.

"So anxious are we in our development plans for Sparr Heights," states Mr. Walters, the sales manager of the Francis-Barnum-Walters company, the owners and subdividers of that beautiful tract, "that we propose to exert the same supervision over the architecture of our business district at Montrose as we propose to exercise in connection with the building of the finest homes."

This business district will face upon two main boulevards over which tens of thousands pass weekly and we are especially desirous that it shall present a pleasing and artistic appearance. We have a board of architects and engineers composed of men of established reputation and long experience whose duty it will be to examine and pass upon, not only the plans for all residences, but upon those for business blocks as well.

"We have decided to adopt the old English style of architecture for store buildings and all designs must conform to or be a modification of that style. We also propose to have a wide parking in front of the stores with ornamental trees."

"Even so-called commercialism has at last begun to learn that 'beauty pays,' and returns the most profit on any money investment that is made for the purpose of pleasing the aesthetic sense."

"For scenic beauty the Verdugo valley is unsurpassed in Southern California and has a most diversified terrain. It is a virgin territory to work upon and we are looking ahead to what it will be years from now. We want something better in the business section than the old-time higgledy-piggledy, hit or miss cluster of cheap store fronts, and, insofar as is possible, we do not propose that the commercial area shall prove a jarring note in an otherwise harmonious whole."

"We are glad to say that those who have purchased business lots

SAGAMORE PARK'S VALUES ARE TOLD

E. G. Warren Tells the Advantages of Low Fares and Facilities

"No subdivision in the country offers better investment advantages or home qualities today than does Sagamore Park, the subdivision beautiful," said E. G. Warren, 300% South Brand boulevard, exclusive agent in Glendale for this tract. "This tract has very large, desirable homesites, improvements all paid for, 5-cent car fare to Los Angeles, no extra telephone cost to the city. It is wonderfully located on a popular boulevard and lies in the shadow of stately eucalyptus trees. It has picnic grounds, bathing pool, spring water, playgrounds—the use of all of which is free to the public. It is in fact a strictly high class, restricted residential district."

E. G. Warren has been doing business at the same old stand for months and months. He has become known as "a square real estate agent," a man who cares for the interests of his clients as he would if those interests were his own. In taking over the exclusive agency for Sagamore Park in Glendale he feels that he is offering to the people of Glendale in this tract one of the finest opportunities to make money in real estate to be found anywhere in this section of the country. Sagamore Park is a real tract of real homesites. Nothing is lacking.

150,000 Dwellings in the U. S. This Year

Contracts for fully 150,000 dwelling houses will have been let throughout the country by the end of 1922, according to an estimate made on data gathered in 53 important cities.

The reports indicated that residential construction for the present year will attain a figure half again as large as that for 1921.

An English newspaper is printing choice bits of broken English as overheard by its readers. Two examples follow, which are considered the most amusing: A coffee-room waiter, who said he was Swiss, replying to a guest ordering breakfast: "Tongue is no more, shicken never vos. How you like your eggs, boiled, tight or loose?"

The other concerns an enraged Portuguese, who turned upon his opponent and spat out: "If I did know ze English for ze box, I would blow your nose, by damn, I am."

and propose to build are enthusiastically in sympathy with the idea and we are looking forward to the achievement of very pleasing results."

CONTRACTORS ARE NECESSARY, IS CLAIM

One may well be proud, nowadays, to be just a contractor, for a new day has dawned on our great industry, the second largest in the world, and the one upon which, perhaps more than any other, the stability and safety of this unsettled world depends, says the National Association of General Contractors, which declares:

More homes, more cheap power, more highways, more improvements are needed to steady us down and anchor us to the old conservation and sanity.

No man flies the red flag over his own home. And just at the industrial zero hour when responsibility and integrity are vitally needed in the construction field the A. G. C. has arisen and grown to great stature, the first successful national association of general contractors.

Its motto is skill, integrity, responsibility.

Membership in it is a reasonable guarantee of these qualities.

Its rapid development has been along lines of unselfish service and a new sense of responsibility to the public.

It is pledged to industrial freedom. It is opposed to all price fixing combinations or job allocating.

It is devoted to raising the standards of contracting everywhere and to bringing the construction industry to the high position in public confidence which its importance merits.

We contractors believe that our craft is the orderly development of a legitimate function. We are convinced that desirable economic conditions flow from this set up.

Society needs the contractor, the man who builds up a great fabric of experience and skill and organization and appliances, and holds them ready for responsible public service.

The general contractor is needed as a standing army is needed. Doubtless, with a government treasury behind us we can, at great expense, recruit, drill and equip armies at whatever cost of life and money and win wars with them but no nation would accept this method as its main reliance for war, if it were sure of constant wars.

If this is true, then the engineer's position is unsound when he recommends or undertakes construction work with his own forces, particularly public work of importance; or, if this is right, it is right all the time, and a final analysis finds the Associated General Contractors and the entire construction army, built up by an endless

WOODLANDS URGES COUNTRY LIFE ON BUYERS

Place for the Homiest Sort of Home to Be Built in Its Hills

Few subdivisions in Southern California have more appeal to the prospective home owner than does Verdugo Woodlands, the mammoth subdivision lying in the north east section of the city. It is situated in the heart of the Verdugo canyon, which for years and years was the home of the old Verdugo family, one of the oldest families in California.

Each of the many homesteads in Verdugo Woodlands is a jewel. It is a spot where the most aristocratic or the "regular fellow" would be glad to place his home. It is a place where a home of the homiest sort could be erected and maintained. Right now this tract is the location of dozens of the coziest homes imaginable. They are homes and there are real people living within them.

The homesteads in Verdugo Woodlands are all fairly priced and there are good restrictions on all of the lots. It is a high class subdivision and one that is a source of pride to the people of this city.

Experts to Lecture on Realty Law

Four members of the Los Angeles realty board, D. F. McGarry, Clinton E. Miller, Charles B. Hopper and W. H. Daum, will speak before the class in real estate law and brokerage at Southwestern University during the fall semester.

C. F. Cable will have charge of the class, which will meet every Friday evening at 6:30.

A man subject to epileptic seizures was picked up unconscious on the streets of New York and rushed to a hospital. When they took off his coat one of the nurses found a piece of paper pinned to the lining upon which was written: "To inform the house surgeon that this is just a case of plain fit—not appendicitis. My appendix has already been removed twice."

process of specialization and elimination, swept into the discard.

Don't you think this would be a disaster to society?

Private construction would then inevitably be the victim of hopeless incompetence, now eliminated by the fierce fire of competition. And public work would become the plaything of politics.

NOTE THESE HINTS ON LANDSCAPE GARDENING

In the solution of our landscape problems for the home garden, we must often choose plants that have been tested and tried and are known to thrive under conditions of heat and aridity.

We encounter many situations of poor soil and sunny exposure, where certain varieties of plants will not thrive at all and for which it is necessary to choose species of unusual resistance.

One very striking shrub of unusually rapid growth, which will endure extremes of heat and drought, is a form of the California Slippery Elm, native of Mexico and north into San Diego county.

The foliage is abundant, leaves fairly large, and of a tawny-yellow color.

The flowers are a deep yellow, with a rich reddish-brown on the under sides of the petals, ranging in size from about two to four inches.

They occur abundantly over a very long season of bloom.
Under cultivation this shrub is capricious of life and may die for no apparent reason; although too much water is apt to be the cause.

But, as it will bloom the first year it is set out, it is almost certain to bring joy to the garden.

HALLOWE'EN IN VENICE

The famous Halowe'en festivities that have always succeeded in placing Venice foremost for eccentric entertainment will have an early start this year and be off with a bang on the night of the 31st, and the merry-makers, accompanied by ghosts, hobgoblins and other inhabitants of the spirit world which, so they say, sally forth on this one night alone in all the year, will hold high revel.
Up and down the pier the crowds will surge, while red fire and bursting bombs will signal the beginning of the celebration and add color to the gay scene. That the thousands who visit Venice on this night of nights may enjoy themselves more fully, there will be yama yama girls, clowns and joker bands in side-splitting antics and the joy spirit will reign rampant. The doors of the big ballroom will be opened at 7:30 and for two hours until 9:30 all those in costume may dance absolutely free. Abe Lyman's Harspooky numbers with weird light effects while unique souvenirs and favors befitting the Halowe'en

OUTDOOR SHOWS AID FRIENDS OF BIG TREES

In the course of his talk on saying “California's Redwoods,” before a university audience at Stanford, Mr. J. D. Grant, chairman of the Save the Redwoods League, suggested that the custom of producing outdoor plays and pageants among the Redwoods should be encouraged. He said, “A thought occurred to me as I witnessed the production of the Mountain Forest and Desert Players in the Big Basin this summer. It seemed to me that the movement which this Redwood play represents is one that should spread and undoubtedly with proper encouragement will spread throughout the United States; each community using its characteristic forests as the setting for outdoor plays and pageants. As you know, the Bohemian Club years ago established the precedent for such plays on a more elaborate scale; but here we have an adaptation of the idea in simpler form and suitable for the use and enjoyment of great masses of our population, the productions relying for their effect mainly upon the beautiful setting furnished by the Redwoods. Through the medium of these productions much can be accomplished for the use and enjoyment of great masses of our population—a greater appreciation of our natural heritage. Some of them representing the newly arrived foreign element particularly, are seemingly insensible to the charm and beauty of our natural surroundings and are concerned little, if at all, with their preservation. Some such means of educating them is greatly needed.”

SUNDAY PROGRAM AT SOUTHWEST MUSEUM

The Sunday afternoon program at the Southwest Museum on the character. The lecture of the day who under her Indian name, Zitkate-Sa, which means “Red Bird,” will speak dressed in her native costume on “The Heart of an Indian.” Those who have read her works will realize the character of lecture this will be, and the program will be further enhanced by the fact that the music of the

WALL PAINTING IS DESCRIBED BY EXPERT

Although wall paper is much desired, it is truthfully maintained that papered interiors are in no respect as sanitary as painted walls.

The paper is aware that papers are bound to the wall by glue or prepared paste.

These binders deteriorate and bacteria easily multiply under the paper.

Modern hospitals and sanitariums do not use wall paper on walls or ceilings.

Many beautiful effects are obtained with flat drying oil paints, and, with stencil borders, present a most pleasing appearance.

Painted walls can be easily cleaned and refreshed without much expense. Above all, one is assured of clean and sanitary surroundings.

The plasterer designates the finish of walls as "hard" and "sand" finish. Hard finished walls should be well sized or primed.

If size is not applied the plaster will absorb a great amount of paint and it is impossible to do good work.

Paint stores have prepared wall size and it is usually sold in pound packages with complete directions.

One may use a good glue dissolved in water, one pound of good relative glue to a gallon of water.

The glue is soaked twelve hours with all the water. This size should be applied thin. Heavy size is apt to peel.

Another excellent wall primer is to take one part of raw linseed oil and one part of prepared wall paint. This material goes on easily and is quickly prepared.

Linseed oil will also keep the following coats of paint from going into the plaster, but it is not advisable to apply the oil without the addition of the paint.

It is very important that all the surface is covered with the size or primer, as any skips will show in the finished work. Colored flat wall paints will also spot if the wall is not well sized.

One coat of linseed oil and flat paint, followed with one coat of prepared paint as it is purchased, will give good results.

If a prepared size or glue is applied, two coats of paint are necessary.

The first coat over the glue or prepared size should be thinned 25 per cent with turpentine or mineral spirits; that is, about three parts of prepared paint and one part of turpentine.

Your paint dealer will be glad to show you sample colors of these paints.

Sand finished walls are sized or primed in the same manner as smooth surfaces. However, if linseed oil and paint are used for size, three parts of paint and one part of oil will give better results than half paint and half oil.

The second coat is applied as the material comes in the package. Apply two coats of paint as purchased over the prepared or glue size.

To paint wall board proceed in the same manner as for smooth plastered walls. A medium priced varnish, thinned 25 per cent with turpentine, will also serve as a size on wall board.

It is necessary in painting walls to have a good brush. If possible obtain a four or five inch brush with good bristle stock.

It must be remembered that a flat drying paint sets much faster than a linseed oil paint, therefore, it is best to work small areas.

If the paints are properly manufactured, they work easily and can be applied by the inexperienced.

MAPLE COURT IS IDEAL HOMESITE

So Says T. W. Watson, Subdivider, Pointing to Its Facilities

"We have the home you have so long been looking for," says T. W. Watson of 710 East Broadway, "and that home is located in Maple Court, a new subdivision, situated just three blocks from the high school site. This tract is one of the choicest home tracts in Glendale and in fact, the entire San Fernando Valley. It has everything the home owner could desire. It is close to schools, boulevards and transportation, and is in the fast growing eastern section of the city. We believe we can show the prospective home owner that this is just the tract he has been looking for for a long time."

Homes in Maple Court are being offered to the public for $500 down and the remainder of the payments like rent. The tract consists of sixteen fine residential lots. These are being disposed of at $1100 to $1400 for the inside lots and $1700 for the corners. All of the street improvements are included in these prices.

HOW TO SECURE BEAUTIFUL HOMES

Are the small and moderate-priced houses of Glendale beautiful, artistic, common-place or ugly? Could they all have been beautiful? Is there any excuse for an ugly or even common-place house?

It can be taken for granted that the absolutely ugly appeals neither to the person who is to build or the one who is intending to purchase.

The same can be said of the mediocre and commonplace, which leaves only the artistic and the beautiful as the type desired and sought after.

But how is the beautiful to be recognized in a completed building or in the earlier stage when the plans are first drawn? The answer is, that depends upon one's training, one's sense and appreciation of the value of proportion, the knowledge that doors, windows, walls and roofs all have a relative proportion to each other.

Too many of us think we know. Instead, let us be honest with ourselves, acknowledge our ignorance and seek out the man who possesses a natural gift for the artistic, who, by training and experience, has established himself in the business of planning and designing.

Truths in Epigram

A man's own observations, what he finds good of and what he finds hurt of, is the best physic to preserve health.—Francis Bacon (1561-1626).

To those who fully admit the immortality of the soul, the destruction of our world will not appear so dreadful.—Charles Darwin (1809-1882).

MR. HARVEY JESTS

Ambassador Harvey apparently has been guilty of the error of jesting. Not that jocularity is a crime, but there are those who should refrain from it, lacking, as they do, the light and blithesome touch which humor stalks heavy-footed, if bootless humor may be said to have a foot. The glittering bonnet launched by such a speaker as Harvey is likely to act boomerang fashion, and hurling back, create the unpleasant radiance of the stars one observes as the result of being thrashed with a blackjack.

In the Harvey remarks was the intimation that women have no souls. The shriek of protest that femininity sends up is full of soul; it is the expression of a large, collective and deeply indignant soul. It knocks the Harvey logic into the middle of some week remote in the future. Harvey has had his answer. And yet, after all, there was nothing to get excited about, nothing at all. The ambassador, being human, even if not extremely so, is an admirer of women. He could not be otherwise. He is aware of their intelligence, their social charm, and their political potency. He is fully conscious that morally they are superior to the swelled-up sex of which he is a talking member. He was only joking, that is the explanation. He was not stupid, for he could not have dreamed that he was to be taken seriously. Nobody is here being charged with stupidity, but the fact must be admitted that in certain quarters he has been taken seriously. That may not be a sign of stupidity, but it does not indicate any dazzling brilliance of intellect.

Ambassador Harvey should try the experiment of being serious next time. Then his utterances might evoke genuine laughter, and his fame as an after-dinner attraction be secure.

FOR JUSTICE SLOANE

The reasons for continuing Justice Sloane on the supreme bench are many. His long career as judge has been marked by a high degree of ability, and a devotion to duty that never has swerved. He grasps the spirit of the law, is wise in construing it, and is eminently fair. By his associates he is regarded as one of the most competent members of the tribunal. Mr. Sloane, as a successful practicing attorney, was selected by the governor to fill a vacancy on the superior bench of San Diego county. There his record was such that he was elected after the term of his appointment had expired. He was taken from the superior bench and given a place in the court of appeals. There again his work was of such character that before he had served his term, he was honored by appointment to the supreme court. Once more he demonstrated his fitness for important tasks. His election for the unexpired term of his predecessor followed, and now for the first time he is a candidate for a full term. There does not appear the slightest pretext for withholding the honor he seeks.

Justice Sloane is highly esteemed on personal grounds, being a gentleman of natural warmth of manner, of ready sympathy, and yet with a bearing that is dignified without undue reserve. He belongs to southern California. Of seven justices, he and Chief Justice-elect Wilbur are the only representatives of this end of the state in the supreme court. This touches the pride somewhat. It would not be pleasing to know that six of seven justices were from the north; and this feeling would not be a reflection on the worth of any of the number.

THE PRESIDENCY

Whenever a candidate wins a notable victory in a state, there is at once the rumor that he has his eye on the presidency. In a general way this doubtless is true. Every schoolboy has the idea drilled into him that he has a chance to be President. This is particularly likely if the lad has been reared in humble surroundings. The presidency is as honorable an office as it is within the power of any man to bestow. It is wholly natural that in many years the influence of early training should be manifest in the conduct and aspirations of the lad developed into a politician, or even a statesman. Yet that the candidate, successful in procuring some minor station, is on his way to the White House is a every instance purely speculative. Here and there a guess may be correct, and later construed into a prophecy fulfilled, but for every such guess, there are scores of guesses gone wrong. There is no room in the executive mansion for the throng of aspirants. The choice when made often is a surprise. When Cleveland was nominated first by the democrats, millions of citizens never had heard of him. When Harding was named by the republicans, his name for the first time became familiar to the people of the country at large. There are a number of men under discussion now as presidential timbers. Judging by precedent, the chances are that not one of them will get the nomination, but the prize goes to somebody not yet seriously considered, and perhaps not even mentioned in this connection.

OIL AND DIPLOMACY

Much of the trouble in regard to Turkey is ascribed to oil. There is oil in Turkish territory, and various nationalities were reaching out to control the supply. Oil poured on troubled waters is supposed to soothe, and in machinery it serves as a lubricant. In this instance the oil itself was the seat of trouble, while as a lubricant of diplomatic machinery, it failed utterly. It is singular indeed that the welfare of purely selfish exploiters of natural wealth, should be permitted to employ nations as their agencies. The world needs oil in large quantities. With decent trade relations established, so that the commodity might reach market at reasonable cost and speed, the millions of consumers do not care a rap as to the source of the product. They want oil. They are not anxious that one group of financiers shall profit, rather than another group. They know that whoever handles the staples will make the handling as gainful as possible. It is nothing to them whether the English beat the French to the oil region, Americans beat the pair, or the Dutch beat the whole lot. In any case they are bound to pay for the oil they use the highest price that the managers of the traffic can institute.

When there seemed a likelihood that the Turk was about to precipitate another war, the world shuddered at the possibility. Contemplation of the horrid experiences that awaited thousands of Christians in the zone of hostilities, stirred the heart of humanity. The cry went up that these men and women must be saved. There were even hysterical demands that the United States intervene by force of arms. And all the time the diplomacy of Europe was shuddering at the thought that the rich oil fields of Turkey might escape exploitation, and dividends yearned for, never come. The revelation of the truth does not uplift the pride.

CENSORSHIP

By DR. FRANK CRANE

There are two opposing points of view on the question of censorship.

One is the point of view of the artist and the other is that of the moralist.

The artist looks merely to the values of expression. His canons are those of efficiency and good taste. All he wants to know is whether a thing is well done.

The moralist looks to the effect which any work will have upon the character of the public.

It is impossible to reconcile these two views. No good artistic work was ever done for the purpose of improving the mind or soul of the public. The phrase "art for art's sake" is perfectly sound. Work of the first class is always done for the joy of self-expression.

At the same time, we must recognize that the morals of the public must be protected and that the right of the artist to his freedom must be protected.

This problem civilization has worked out in the only practical way.

That way is that men must be allowed to do as they choose. That is the thing called liberty as they choose. That is the thing called liberty as they choose. That is the thing called liberty as they choose.

Of course this liberty, if uncensored, would speedily reduce the world to chaos, and we have found out that every man's liberty must be limited by the rights of other people.

For this purpose we have the institution called Law.

A great many people misunderstand the purposes of Law. It is not to prevent action, for that cannot be done without the destruction of liberty.

Its purpose is to enforce responsibility for action. By so doing liberty is allowed and at the same time it is restrained by the general good.

Law declares that a man has a right to burn a house, to commit an assault, or to do any other criminal act so chooses, but that he must be held responsible for his acts.

To talk about the only liberty being the liberty to do right is nonsense. The only real liberty is the liberty to do wrong.

Of course this is dangerous. It is dangerous to allow a big, two-fisted man to walk the streets where there are women and children. He might strike them. But it is far more dangerous to lock the man up just because he is able to strike them.

After infinite experiments we have found that the best way to regulate that man is to say that he may do as he pleases, but he must take the consequences of what he does.

Censorship, therefore, is essentially illegal; it is contrary to the very genius of law. It might be very well to appoint some one who could prevent offenses, but no human being is qualified to say whether another human being is going to do right or wrong. The only thing we can do is to determine whether the thing a man has done is right or wrong—and we bundle that.

Even the Almighty does not rob us of our liberty to do evil. He does not "prevent" wicked men. He holds them responsible.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

The Verb and Its Subject

Lee C. Henderson, Paso, Wash.: "Which is correct: 'A number of girls are absent'; or, 'A number of girls is absent'? Is it not a rule of grammar that a verb takes the same number as its subject? I contend that 'girls' is the subject of the sentence, and is qualified by 'A number,' that the verb should be plural; and that the sentence should read, 'A number of girls are absent.' Am I correct?" Answer: You are correct in your selection of the verb; are you not correct in selecting girls as the subject. Girls is in the objective case, object of the preposition of; the object of a preposition cannot be the subject of a verb. Number, which is a collective noun, is, therefore, the subject. A collective noun may be followed by a plural verb if the group symbolized are thought of as individuals, and not as a unit.

A Difficulty Explained

Hannah M. Fleming, Chicago, Ill.: "Some time ago, under the discussion of the proper use of the pronoun who and whom in 'The Right Word' column, the following sentence appeared: 'It is her who will give us the best advice.' While I clearly understand the use of the word who, I am at a loss to understand the use of the pronoun her in this sentence. Should not the word she have been used? Referring to the use of 'he' and 'lay' as illustrated by you in 'The Right Word,' since my conception of the use of these two words is somewhat different to the manner in which you used them in the examples set forth, will you kindly give me the rule governing their use?" Answer: Have you not observed occasionally a sentence at the top of 'The Right Word' column, as follows: "Find the error in this article?" The error you mention was a deliberate one, and was corrected the following day under "Yesterday's Error." May I offer a suggestion? Do not say "different to; say 'different from.'" The following is quoted from the Century Dictionary: "different to: Regarded as colloquial or incorrect and generally avoided by careful writers." Next Monday, "The Right Word" will be devoted once more to the discussion of "he" and "lay."

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

The most beautiful and inspiring things of the world are the freest. The easiest to obtain. Granted to you like endlessly generous benefactions.

Flowing out to you like the air you breathe. Stretched before you like a great painting. Unfolded to you like a magic carpet.

Of course, motor cars and diamonds and Persian rugs and pearl necklaces do not flow out to you so easily.

But they are not the most beautiful things in the world.

Or the most valuable. Although the money cost of them may be great.

Again we have to set up a standard value. Decide what things are valuable and what are only trivial.

Whether health is better for a boy to have than indigestible sweets and a toy balloon.

Whether it is true as Tennyson said that "kind hearts are more than coronets and simple faith than Norman blood."

There is no more beautiful thing in the world than the rich spirit of a great man or woman.

And that flows out to you endlessly.

The philosophy of the teachers of the world for you to have and profit by at the cost of a little effort at reading and thinking.

For great men and great women have poured out their spirits lavishly that you might be happier.

Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt.

The writers and poets and dreamers and scholars of the world, Burns and Shelley and Shakespeare and good old Doctor Johnson.

You can visit with them and read with them and profit by them at will. No cards to be presented at the doors. No waiting in ante-rooms.

Always ready to cheer you and delight you and instruct you.

Then there is the flower in the garden.

With incense pouring out.

Never exhausted.

Always breathed for you into the air.

The more of it is expended the more there is to be expended.

Like the richness of a great spirit.

And a radiant sunset.

A glorious dawn.

Both spread before your eye, if you choose to look.

No painting of all the world so beautiful.

A thing of paint and oil, a mere approximation.

There is the pure and fresh air of the hills.

The majesty of the mountains.

The sparkle and glitter and foam and endless tides of the sea.

The green of the fields.

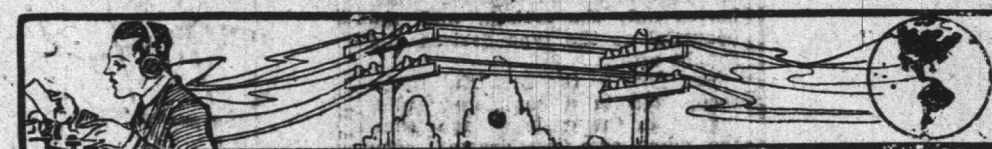

The splash and dash of the mountain brook.

And the great fluffiness of cloud that rests above you.

What wealth there is in the world for you.

If you choose to know what is wealth.

If your heart and mind are in tune.

Songs of the Poets

Sea-Birds—By Elizabeth Akers (1832-1911)

O lonesome sea-gull, floating far
Over the ocean's icy waste,
Aimless and wide thy wanderings are;
Forever vainly seeking rest—
Where is thy mate, and where thy nest?

Twixt wintry sea and wintry sky,
Cleaving the keen air with thy breast,
Thou sailest slowly, solemnly.

No fatter on thy wing is pressed:—
Where is thy mate, and where thy nest?

O restless, homeless human soul,
Following for aye thy nameless quest,
The gulls float, and the billows roll;
Thou watchest still, and questionest:
Where is thy mate, and where thy nest?

Stupid, Fearless Elephant Seals Need Treaty

A treaty between the United States and Mexico is being urged to prevent slaughter of surviving members of elephant seal, fur seal and sea otter herds that formerly inhabited the waters off lower California in great abundance.

The need of international regulation of such helpless sea life was shown by an expedition sent on during the past summer by the committee on conservation of marine life of the Pacific division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Only 361 elephant seals, which are among the strangest and most remarkable of all animals, were found on Guadalupe Island by the expedition, headed by Dr. E. D. Silliman, which also had the academy of the California Academy of Sciences, the San Diego Society of Natural History, the Scripps Institution for Biological Research, the National Geographic society, and the National Research Council and the government of Mexico. This species, which has considerable commercial value, was several times thought to have been completely exterminated by hunters sailing from the United States and the finding of this small remnant has given the scientists hope that this animal, that does not exist elsewhere in the world, may be preserved for future commercial use and scientific study.

"Elephant seals are so stupid and so fearless of man that the whole herd could be easily destroyed in a very short time," says Dr. Hanna. "They should be given protection on the high seas as well as on land and in territorial waters."

Elephant seals are taken in large quantities and used for the same purposes as whale oil and the skins have been used for leather. These animals do not injure man, directly or indirectly. Their grotesqueness makes them of much value for exhibition purposes in museums and zoological parks. For commercial and aesthetic reasons, the species should be preserved.

Treaty protection may come too late to preserve even a single individual of the herd of more than 100,000 fur seals that inhabit the old rocky grounds on the island. So far as actual knowledge goes, the species is extinct.

Threatened by fur hunters who found the skins were almost as valuable as the celebrated Alaska fur seal. But an international agreement may preserve some stock that may exist unknown to man in some secluded part of the Mexican islands.

Seals that lived in large numbers in the water of the California and Lower California coasts but which are now on the very verge of extinction would also be protected by the American-Mexican treaty.

The scientists also propose that the fur-seal herds in Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Ecuador, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay and elsewhere in the southern hemisphere be given adequate protection on the high seas.

A treaty between the United States, Great Britain, Japan, and Russia entered into in 1911 has effectively increased the size of the Alaskan herds, and they believe that similar results can be obtained from further agreements.

When such a general treaty is considered by an international conference, Dr. Hanna suggests that the time would be opportune to negotiate a general treaty for the protection and conservation of sea otters, sea elephants, sea lions, whales and other species of marine life whose habitats lie wholly or partly in the high seas.

COMMENT ON DAYS NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The I. W. W. seems to be a curious organization, rather than an actual menace. Its purposes are a little obscure. Its hope of accomplishing any change in the social structure appears to be based on nothing. It has the will to do serious mischief, but it lacks the brains. Should it in course of time acquire the brains, it would lose the will. Education is the great need of the I. W. W. adherent. If he had education, so far as his present role is concerned, he would vanish. His futile activities are the expression of a dull and unreasoning stupidity.

So far as may be ascertained, the I. W. W. is not made up of workers. It is composed of those for whom circumstances have created the necessity for working. This necessity they resent as an imposition. They figure that the world owes them a living. The effort to collect this involves too great an exertion. It must be brought to them on a silver platter. They object to every evidence of prosperity. To engage in useful industry strikes them as an offensive operation. They would be glad to destroy the whole system that makes work and wages possible.

When the police take in a member of the order they find that they have caught a chronic loafer, the essence of laziness. A man who lives as a vagabond because of sloth; who rides a brakebeam for the simple reason that he feels himself above toil, may agitate until his tongue runs down, but he won't accomplish a thing. The theory of destroying what the other fellow has construed out of hard-earned money, doesn't overthrow a government. It merely gives the police an extra task.

A woman who chooses to be known as Madame Lessing has been sentenced to the penitentiary. She not only had advocated the overthrow of the government, but used its postal facilities for the spread of her doctrine. More than this, she had advocated the abolition of marriage, thus trespassing on the prerogatives of the divorce court. In the place whither she goes she still may be conscious that the government is functioning, but as to marriage, she may cease worrying. Celibacy is the rule there.

Letters by the late Franklin K. Lane, just made public, contain much of interest. It is exceedingly doubtful that the writer ever expected they would be printed. When a man of Lane's character and intellect wrote of the war-mad world as being "merry as a dance in hell," the sentence in itself becomes a revelation of the atmosphere in which the cabinet wrought in those troubled days.

Captain Crawford, a pretty Salvation Army lass, has for two years been holding meetings in Broadway, New York. The other day, by a police order of unusual stupidity, she was arrested for blocking traffic. New Yorkers do not desire concern for their souls to interfere with so important a thing as traffic. After her release Captain Crawford was interviewed. She had a good word to say for chorus girls. She says they are no more immoral than other girls. For morality she will "match them with an equal number from any walk of life." The wise captain, shown by her picture to have beauty, appears also to have brains.

It is to be regarded as fortunate that England and France have become of one mind concerning German reparations. At least there is a better prospect of finding out what Germany is able to do, and then devising means to have Germany do it.

There is a common belief that all the world loves a lover, but the world doesn't do anything of the sort. It loves the proper and decent type of lover. It hasn't a high opinion of the one that woos and wins, gets a license by lying about his age, and then runs to the old folks to beg that they will get him out of the scrape.

Croquet is recommended for fat men. The reason is not apparent. Naturally, for the extremely obese, tennis is too strenuous, and even golf, a little wearing. Croquet gives gentle exercise, not sufficient in itself to reduce weight, but just enough to induce appetite, and more fat.

The yawning crowd that filled the court room where a trial for murder was in progress, had to be turned out because it laughed. There was nothing at which any person of normal instinct could have felt an impulse towards mirth. It follows that the morbid throng that jams its way into every such trial is not normal. That's some comfort.

An unusual number of football players have been injured in practice this year. Such players as have come through the preliminaries with bones intact promise to take it out on the other side. The ambition is to have the casualty list about evenly divided.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The Ten Pound club had its first annual pie fest out at The Joint—which is what we call our combination golf, lawn tennis, Ladies' Aid, and poker castle—last night. Every sort of pie was served. The Ten Pounders revelled in blackberry and blueberry and mince and pumpkin and green apple and fresh peach. They emerged heavy and soggy and uncomfortable, but happy.

"A lot of old dodoes," sneered Tommy Fitzgerald, peeking through the half-opened door into the dining room where this orgy was being perpetrated. "Dodoes—thunder!" said I, only more emphatically. "Boy, if you were ever to step on one of them you'd die in a burst of blue flame."

At that, they were dodoes a year ago. Over middle age, every one of them, with a blanket of fat in front, and overhanging, pendulous, blue-gilled, fish-eyed to the last man. Now and then they would gather in the rathskellar, each with something out of his private locker, and wait that fat was creeping on.

"I'll bet any man a suit of clothes I can lose ten pounds first," said one.

So the club was born. Each Ten Pounder put up the price of a suit of clothes and then went to work. They were all pretty well jiggled when they did it, but, after getting the money up, they made good. The big prize was to go at the first annual pie fest to the man who could get on the scales, naked as an oyster, and show that he weighed precisely what the life insurance tables ordered that he should weigh, and there were monthly prizes running through the year.

"We can't starve the darned stuff off," was the club's resolution at the first monthly meeting.

The club was rickety, nervous, sour, and inclined to cry—except one man. The old man who carries his horse had told him that a horse may be starved until he is thin, but he cannot be strong. Yet the horse in the best and strongest condition is far from fat.

"Work, sir," said the old groom. "Limber up your waist. Get rid of the mattress of lard you carry in front. But eat enough to keep up your strength."

He passed on the good word and today the Ten Pounders—past middle age, bank-confined, store-closeted, office-anchored—are about the best men physically in The Joint.

"But, man, you should have seen them go to that pie on the year's great day!"

POPULAR ROADSTER MAKES GRAND RECORD

From sunny Pasadena, through the Southwest desert country, through heavy Texas mud, over the tortuous Tennessee mountain trails to Washington, D. C., and on to New York. Then back along the Great Lakes, through Yellowstone and the Pacific Northwest, down the Pacific coast and back to Pasadena.

This remarkable 10,000-mile trip was made by Mr. A. F. Van Ornum and Mr. J. W. Cooper of Pasadena in a Willys-Knight roadster, the trip occupying 49 days, including stopovers, actual running time being 34 days.

"A Tribute to a Marvelous Automobile" is a fitting title to this unsolicited testimonial written after making a double transcontinental trip without so much as a moment of engine trouble or a flat tire from any cause," writes Mr. Van Ornum. "Average miles per gallon of gasoline was 22 over all roads in all gears. Average miles per gallon of oil was 690. Between Conway, Ark., and Minneapolis, Minn. (by way of New York) just 3443 miles, we used exactly three and one-half pints of water."

This trip demonstrates in a practical way the inherent qualities of all Willys-Knight cars. Exclusive features like the wonderful Willys-Knight sleeve-valve motor that grows smoother and more powerful with use, are responsible for such extraordinary service records.

The good Maxwell is outselling for the very excellent reason that it is a better car. The smarter style, beautiful finish and finer fittings are simply an added measure of value.

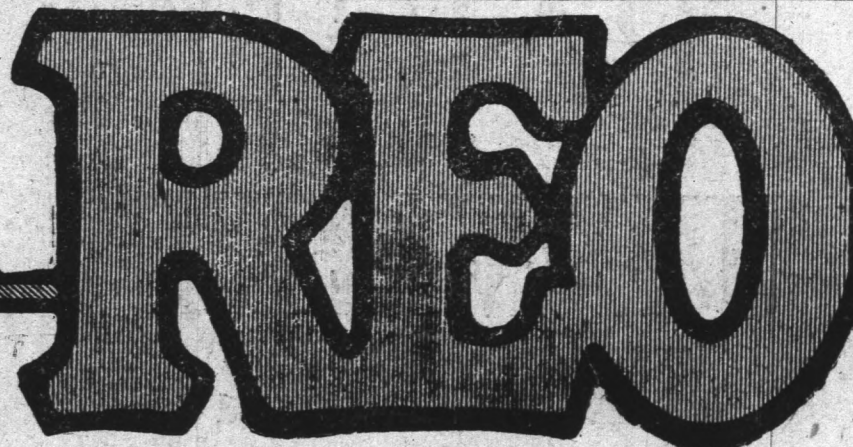

Cord tires, non-skid front and rear; disc steel wheels, demountable at rim and at hub; drum type lamps; Alemite lubrication; motor-driven electric horn; unusually long springs; new type water-tight windshield; snug curtains that open with the doors. Prices F. O. B. Detroit, revenue tax to be added: Touring Car, $2855; Roadster, $2855; Four-Passenger Coupe, $3235; Sedan, $3235.

MAXWELL TRAVELS 4100 MILES IN 18 DAYS; MAKES 2000 MILES ON 95 GALLONS OF GASOLINE, 11 QUARTS OF OIL

The Maxwell car is making new records every day, but William Gast of 506 West Elk street, who arrived in Glendale on Saturday, October 21, has set a few records for other transcontinental travelers to shoot at, and he did it without an effort or the knowledge that he was establishing any records.

Mr. Gast spent the summer in the east and when he decided to come back to California, he looked around New York for a used 1922 Maxwell, hoping to save some of the depreciation on a new car by purchasing one that had been used. After two weeks' search, he found only two used 1922 Maxwell cars in New York City, that were for sale; one had been damaged in a collision with a railway train and the other had been confiscated by the government as a rum-runner, and he paid $350 for it at a United States marshal's sale. This car had been driven 14,000 miles and had never had any care of any kind.

Mr. Gast drove the car up into Canada, then down through Minnesota to Kansas City and covered a total of 4100 miles in 18 days. The last 2000 miles was traversed at an average of 200 miles per day, using 95 gallons of gasoline, 11 heads and bluebills are beginning to arrive. November is generally good on this body of water. Trout fishing in Lake Arrowhead is good, several limits having been taken during the past week.

Los Angeles County

Anaheim Landing—A few small ducks shot the past week. Elizabeth Lake—Few Ruddies. Large ducks have not arrived yet. Santa Monica bay pier fishing fair, smelt, mackerel and a few halibut. Trolling for corn fed mackerel good.

Redondo—Smelt, mackerel, halibut and few rock bass being caught. Trolling and boat fishing off Point Vincent good.

Long Beach—Pier fishing good.

Ventura County
Mouth of Santa Clara river, good shooting early in morning and late in evening. This is very good if a stiff wind is blowing. Point Mague tide lands shooting is fair, bags average eight to the hunter. Fine shooting when the wind blows.

Santa Barbara County
Duck shooting is fair at the mouth of the Santa Ynez river and the sloughs near Gaudalupe. This district is better in November. Dove shooting is fair in Cuyama district and Foxen canyon.

Surf fishing is good at Pismo, Oceano and Surf. Pier fishing is good at Oceano. Clams are plentiful at Pismo, Oceano and Casimiro.

Good camp sites are located at Gavilota Pass, 6 miles south of Los Alamos—city of Santa Maria, Surf, Oceano and Foxen canyon. Prospects for quail in the Santa Maria district are bright for the opening November 1st.

San Luis Obispo County
Duck shooting at Morro bay and Oceano is good—many limits and near limits killed the past week. Boats may be secured at the town of Morro.

Good dove shooting is reported in the eastern part of the county. Trout fishing near Cambria is reported good. Abalones may be taken between Cambria and San Simon and Pismo and Morro, along rocky coast. Crabs are being caught from pier at Avila.

Trolling is good off Avila.

There are camp grounds at the following places: Arroyo Grande, Pismo, San Luis Obispo, Morro, Atascadero, Pasa Robles and Pozo.

Kern County
Buena Vista Lake—Fair duck shooting on northeast end of lake. Boats and decoys are necessary to get birds. Boats rent from $1.50 to $3 per day. Decoys, blinds and boats can be secured from S. A. Lovell, Box 2108, Taft. Whitney's boat stand has boats for $1.50 per day.

Tulare Lake—Many ducks reported and many limits made the past week.

CHILD KILLING MUST BE STOPPED

That the harvest of child lives on the streets and roads of Southern California must stop is the growing sentiment among the municipalities of the southern and central counties.

According to officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California, more drastic measures are now contemplated to protect the children from the rush of careless motorists—and to protect motorists from the rush of careless children.

Statistics show at the present time that more and more children are paying the penalty of playing in the roads and streets than ever before in the history of the west. In nearly all the larger communities restrictive measures have been taken, but it is in the enforcing of these measures that the greatest good is to be accomplished.

Children are forbidden by law in most instances to play ball of either kind in the city streets. It is also generally prohibited to use a coaster in the streets or roads. Law usually stops skaters or coasters to "rip rides" behind automobiles. But in some instances these laws are not being enforced, and the auto club is starting a campaign to see that they are enforced.

An appeal of particular importance will be made to parents. It is asked that the parents instruct their children to do their playing in vacant lots or public or school playgrounds. This matter will also be brought to the attention of the public schools in every county through a periodical to be issued by the safety bureau of the auto club.

quarts of oil and with a total cost for repairs of all kinds of 75 cents. This car also has two of its original tires.

"I have driven a good many cars," said Mr. Gast, but never took much interest in the Maxwell until I saw the great number of them on the streets in New York City, and after talking with a number of Maxwell owners, decided that it was the car I wanted to drive to California. It is the best car I have ever owned," said Mr. Gast.

REGISTRATION OF AUTOS IN CALIF. GROWS

California is breaking all records in automobile registration, and it may lead America in its total this year.

According to figures compiled by the Automobile Club of Southern California it is shown that there are more autos in California at this time than there were in New York on January 1 of this year.

The registration for 1921 in New York, which led America last year, was 812,031. The registration at the present time in California is approximately 834,192. California was fourth on the list of states for the number of automobiles registered last year, but there is a possibility that it will jump to second place this year, and if eastern states eliminate all "dead" or defunct numbers from their registration totals at the end of the year, then California may jump into first place. The registration figures as issued in this state contain no "dead" numbers. Ohio and Pennsylvania, and of course New York, were ahead of California last year. The total number of cars registered in this state for 1921 was 678,830—an increase of 157,362 autos in less than ten months of the year.

The increase during 1921 over 1920 for California was only 104,938. The comparison of these figures is pointed out by the Auto club as indicative of the tremendous increase in cars for this state during 1922.

According to additional figures secured by the club, there is every evidence that all records for transcontinental travel will be broken here this year. Thousands of cars are arriving each week over the transcontinental routes, more than

MOTORISTS, LEARN REASON OF AGGRAVATING 'MISS' WHICH HAS WRECKED MANY OUTING TRIPS

To Understand the Functioning of the Automobile Means to Easily Locate and Remedy This Trouble Which Is So Injurious to the Motor

How to remedy that aggravating "miss" is the burning question with the motorist today, as it has ever been. Misfiring is bound to occur in connection with the highest priced car, and when it does it must be taken care of. In finding and remedying the trouble it is a question of elimination, unless the motorist knows his car "like a book." After driving a machine for a long time he learns where to look for trouble. If it is not found in the accustomed places, the motorist must look further.

There are three engine systems which control and affect firing. They are: carburetion, ignition and valves. The first thing one must attempt to do is to determine which one of the three is causing the trouble and then deal only with that system.

In four and six-cylinder engines the cause of misfiring is sometimes easier to determine than in an eight or twelve, for the reason that the greater number of explosions confuses the ear. Some owners have become expert even with multi-cylinder engines, so as to be able to say whether it is only one cylinder, two of them or a general skipping from one to another. Where the misfiring is in the same cylinder all the time, as determined by the car, the matter is not so difficult because a simple short-circuiting of the spark plugs in order will quickly tell which cylinder it is.

The average owner is familiar with this method, which consists of holding a hammer head against the spark plug and cylinder top while the engine is idling. This cuts out the plug. When it is so shorted it will not produce a spark, even if it is not the faulty one. The sense of hearing then is used to tell one whether the sound of the engine changes when a plug is shorted. If there is no change in the sound of the engine speed when a certain plug is cut out of action, then that cylinder is misfiring. If, however, the engine slows down and the misfiring becomes worse, then that is not the cylinder. One must test all cylinders in this way.

The general rule is that if there is misfiring always in the same cylinder, suspect ignition or valves, and that if it changes from cylinder to cylinder, being first in one and then in another, or perhaps two, and so on, suspect carburetion. These are general rules, which do not hold in many cases.

Let us suppose that an engine is constantly misfiring in one cylinder, the owner does not know which one, and he is unable to get any clue as to what might be causing the trouble. The first step is to short the plugs as mentioned or hold each ignition cable in turn a small fraction of an inch away from the plug terminal to note if a spark jumps the gap so made. Another method is to remove the spark plugs, attach the cables and lay the plugs on the cylinder head while the engine is cranked by hand. The plug ends are watched for sparks.

The object of all these tests is to determine if there is, it immediately eliminates the whole ignition system and one may go to carburetion or valves. The trouble with these tests is that they do not tell the inexperienced owner if a good spark is being obtained, for very often the spark occurs, but it is not strong enough to ignite the charge. Such a condition also may cause periodic misfiring. If the plug insulators are clean at the bottom, not loose or cracked, the electrodes clean and adjusted to about 1-32 or the thickness of a thin dime, one may assume that the spark jumping that gap is good. If one is not at hand, clean the electrodes of the faulty plug. If the insulator is cracked, there is no use using that plug again. If the insulator is loose, a new gasket and tightening of the check nut may remedy the trouble. Carburetion plug ends is the usual cause of trouble in question. If, however, one of the plugs does not spark and it is replaced with a new one and that one does not spark, then the trouble is in the cable attached to the plug or in the ignition unit. See that the cable ends are clean and tight and that the insulation is not oil soaked or worn through at any point. If the cable is O. K., clean or dress the breaker contact in the ignition unit and note whether the unit can wobble so as to cause the distributor arm to make poor contact at that segment.

That is as far as one ought to go in tracing ignition trouble in one particular cylinder. If the ignition is O. K. in any one cylinder and that cylinder misses then the valves ought to be suspected. See that they do not stick at all engine speeds, that the tapped clearance is right and that there is not a great deal of oil running down the valve steam guide. The latter causes an air leak and dilutes the mixture to that cylinder. Any air leak to the cylinder will give the same result. Valves that do not seat properly may cause misfiring, but usually the cylinder is not cut out all the time, but only at certain speeds and loads.

A hole in a piston, a broken valve, a very badly worn piston, may cause one cylinder to constantly misfire. One of the troubles common to many engines, especially the cheaper ones, is that one cylinder will misfire all the time and after testing the ignition and valves as mentioned, everything is found O. K. When the plug is in the engine oil interferes with sparking. When the plug is removed always note whether they are dry or oil covered. If the plug fires for a while, then misfires and is all covered with oil when removed, the oil is causing trouble.

Very often one cylinder will misfire only at low speeds, because the plug gap is too wide (especially with magneto ignition), the valves cylinder may misfire at high speeds, because of poor gap adjustment, valve adjustment, wobbling distributor, loose connection, etc. Bear in mind that in any case of misfiring in one particular cylinder, trace through the controlling elements of firing in that cylinder; that is, ignition and valves. Carburetion need not be suspected (except mixture dilution) because carburetion usually affects all cylinders.

Where the misfiring is general, going from one cylinder to another and continuing so, and it occurs at all speeds, go right to the ignition unit, test as mentioned previously (also check the timing) and trace back to the battery. Corroded or loose battery connection or a weak battery will cause this trouble. Check over the wiring insulation carefully.

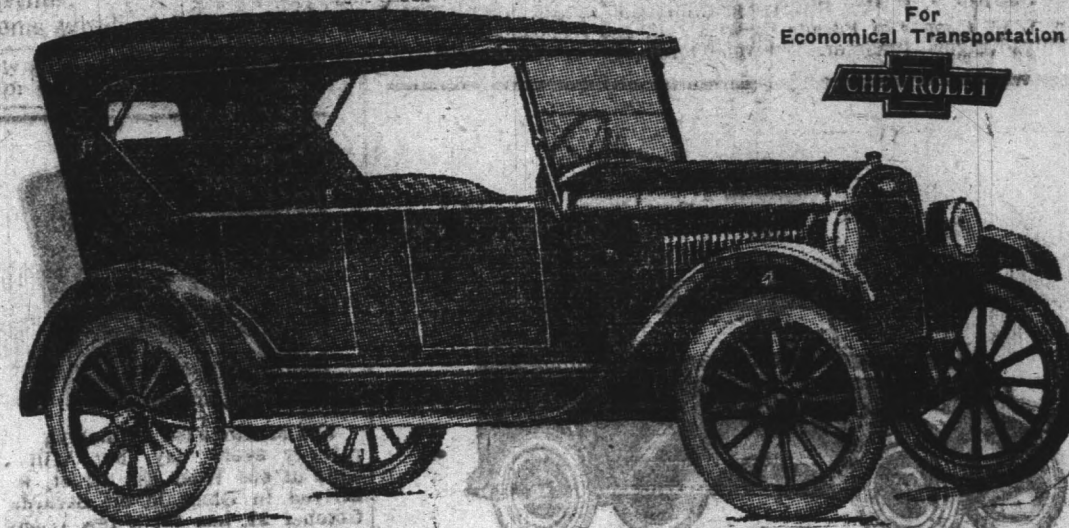

With magneto ignition misfiring only at low speeds may be caused by weak magnets. After tracing through ignition for this trouble, examine the carburetor and fuel feed.

The carburetor adjustment should be practically the last thing to receive attention. Misfiring on accelerating usually is caused by a lean mixture, while misfiring at low on high speeds may be caused by either too lean or too rich a mixture. In checking through the carburetion system start with the float bowl. First see that the float bowl shows the proper level of fuel when the engine is idling. Then note whether the float chamber fills when the engine runs fast. If it does not then the trouble is in the line. If the line is clear then it is the vacuum tank. If the tank fills properly then you have to go back further to the main gasoline line and then to the main tank.

STILL AT IT. What's become of the old-fashioned gypsies, who swamped horses with the farmers and always cheated 'em? "Oh, they're still traveling around, only they swap wares and flippers that have been touched up a little." —Florida Times-Union.

"FOOL me once," says the proverb, "and it's shame on you. Fool me twice and it's shame on me."

Don't be fooled when it comes to spending your money. Patronize the merchants who have a reputation for fair dealing and honesty. Such motives must actuate the consistent advertiser. The man who invests real money in building a reputation for himself and his merchandise cannot afford to risk any of it by taking unfair advantage of his patrons.

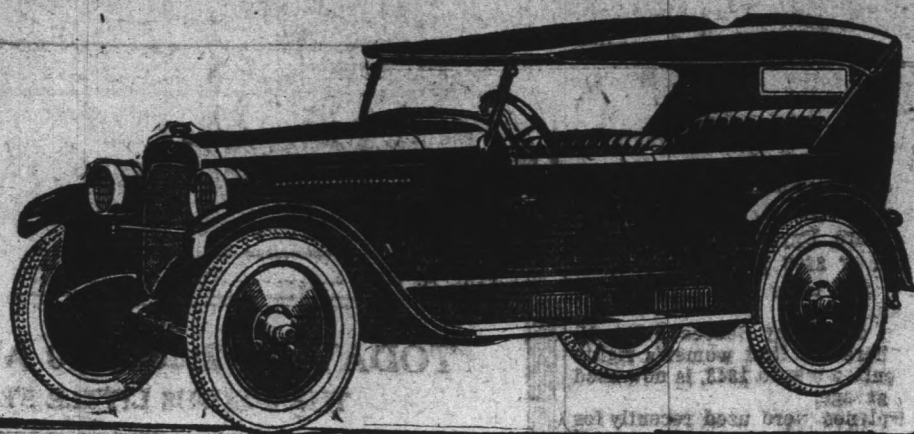

The consistent advertiser pays money to tell you about his goods. He knows they are good—he backs them with his money because he believes they will satisfy. Only merchandise which is consistently good can be consistently advertised.

So advertising protects you against fraud and inferiority. It tells you what is new and good, making you a wise buyer. It saves you money by pointing out for your consideration only the best products and the best places to buy them.

Thrifty men and women read the advertisements. To them it is a plain everyday business proposition—a duty they owe to themselves and to their pocketbooks. Don't be fooled.

Don't spend your money blindly

RAILROADS BLAMED FOR AUTOMOBILE SHORTAGE

Things are "looking down" for prospective motor owners, so far as agents supplying the demand for cars is concerned.

While motorists have known for some time that delivery dates on some popular models of automobiles were fairly uncertain, they have been taken care of with dispatch so that no actual shortage of cars has ever been present.

However, shortage of manufacturing supplies, chiefly steel and coal, due solely to the fact that the movement of these necessary materials for automobile manufacture is uncertain because of the poor condition of railroad rolling stock throughout the country, now faces the manufacturers. Great quantities of steel are accumulating in the yards and warehouses, it is said, and the entire steel industry is said to be hampered because of the non-movement of materials.

Both the coal and steel situation will have a great effect on the automobile industry as a whole. While at the present time conditions are favorable, the materials are not being shipped in quantities great enough to take care of the enormous demands that have taxed the miners, as well as the manufacturers of automobiles, to their very limits.

The cause does not lie with the recent coal and steel strikes, of which the public has heard so much, but instead with the railroad, in failing to keep their rolling stock in condition to bear the heavy traffic.

Conditions such as these indicate prospects of an early rise in the prices of cars. The shortage of rolling stock of the railroads has forced the metals market away above par, and bonuses are being offered for early delivery, so that production costs at the factories are rising steadily. While all the steel mills are sold out fairly well ahead, many of them taking orders on long time delivery basis, none of them are in a position to deliver because of the rail shortage, and it looks very much like a rise in automobile prices.

Percy—Hi, hi, hi, know, hold top! Wot's the bloomin' name huv your brother's automobile? Wot's the bloomin' name huv your brother's automobile? Wot's the bloomin' name huv your brother's automobile?

An average of 20,000 passenger automobiles in Philadelphia, Pa., enter New Jersey every week-end en route to seashore resorts.

WOMEN NOW STUDY MECHANICS OF MOTOR

"The discriminating buying faculty of women is being felt in the automotive industry," declares I. G. Cooley, 114 South Brand, local Durant dealer in four and six cylinder models, "so much so, that they will reckon prominently in the future plans of the automotive trade."

"The day when a car could be sold to a woman because of its appearance alone has passed. The old impression was that if the body of the car had good lines, and pleasant to the eye, she would buy immediately without the slightest regard to the ability of its chassis."

"The driving of motor cars by thousands of women during the war, and the present universal use of passenger cars has caused the passing of that idea. Of the eleven million passenger cars in the United States, average registration shows that two automobiles in every 25 are owned or operated by a woman."

"This shows that there are more than three-quarters of a million women who habitually drive their own cars and are familiar with the possibilities of the automobile just as well as men. Her driving experience has taught her to appreciate the mechanical excellence, and in selecting a car for herself she will seriously consider the parts of the chassis and its qualities before making a purchase. She is well aware of how mechanical construction affects comfort in driving, and the service secured."

Lieut. Lawson Buys Olds Semi-Sport 4

Lieut. L. A. Lawson, who is in Glendale on leave of absence, has just purchased a new Olds semi-sport 4, from the J. C. Pollock company of West Broadway. Immediately after making the purchase Lieut. Lawson had the car driven to San Pedro, where it was placed on a Honolulu-bound liner. This army officer also left on this liner for Honolulu, where he is to be stationed.

Lieut. Lawson chose the Olds on account of its good finish, and durable qualities. He thinks it is a car that can stand the gaff in the army service.

HE'LL GET HIS

"Did you lynch the man who stole your automobile?"

"No," replied Plute Peter. "He got away."

"Unpunished?"

"No, sir. If that bunch of pernickety junk treats him the way it has me, he's having punishment enough." — Washington Star.

20-YEAR-OLD CAR SPEED WAGON DOES GOOD WORK

After 20 years of varied service, a one-lung Cadillac car has just completed a 750-mile trip from the Cadillac Motor Car company's factory in Detroit to New York City under its own power.

The run was made by the ancient automobile as a part of the celebration of the twentieth birthday of the company. It also arrived in New York in time to feature the celebration of 20 years of activity of the Detroit Cadillac Motor Car company, the New York distributor organization for Cadillacs.

It is M. Upmeyer, head of the Cadillac-New York organization and of the Aeromarine Airways, Inc., who piloted the antique craft as far as Erie, Pa. From there it was taken to its destination by Lucian R. Burne, who unloaded and piloted through the streets of New York the first Cadillac arriving in that city.

Charles Brewer, a third member of the New York company for the past 20 years, acted as mechanic, and Bruce Swaney of the Detroit factory carried the greetings of manufacturer to distributor. On arrival at the metropolis the car was paraded down Fifth avenue and attracted utmost interest as it chugged away triumphantly in front of the city hall, while the pilot delivered a greeting from Mayor Coughens of Detroit to Mayor Hylan of New York.

The route taken led through Toledo and Cleveland, Ohio, to Erie, Pa. There it swung into the lower tier of cities, going through Jamestown, Olean, Hornell, Elmira, Binghamton and Middletown. The itinerary carried the old car over the Catskills, with some grades that called for extraordinary hill-climbing ability. Going from Jamestown, N. Y., to clean the mist so thick that the lights on the car could not penetrate it. Mr. Burne virtually had to feel his way along the road.

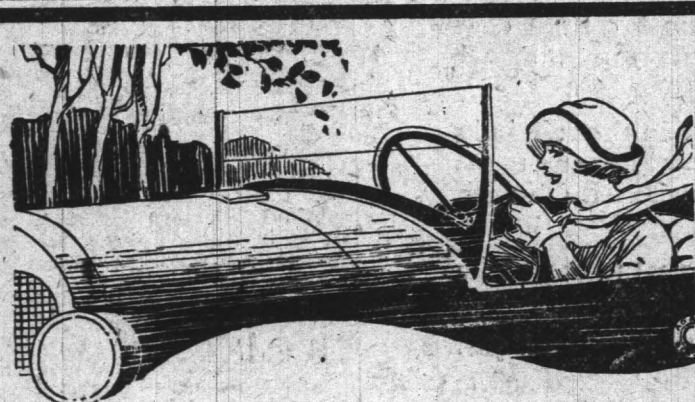

The old car possesses many unique characteristics. It has a curved hood concealing the radiator, a chain drive and motor amidships. It is built on the style of a horse-drawn phaeton and seats four passengers. The quaint door and latch at the back by which the passengers enter caused much comment among those familiar with the luxurious tonneaus of modern automobiles.

Brown—I'm the most forgetful man in the world.
Black—Why don't you buy a flyver?
Brown—What for?
Black—That will jog your memory.

"Covering a distance of more than 1000 miles during a single spraying season is the near-record for this type of work established by Fred A. Wolfe of Belvidere, Ill., with his Reo Speed Wagon," according to Mr. Harry E. White, Inc. of the Harry E. White, Inc. "Mr. Wolfe is one of the largest growers of fruit in Northern Illinois and he sprays more than 10,000 trees each season with a high-powered sprayer which has been mounted on the standard Speed Wagon express body," says Mr. White.

"He makes three trips to each of his orchards and the power sprayer which he uses operates at 400 pounds pressure."
